THE VULLY

The Mont Vully is situated on the western side of the Seeland's largest plain and resembles a pearl gently placed between the three lakes of Murten, Neuchâtel and Biel. The Celtic and Helvetic tribes appreciated the region's temperate climate and the local countryside's particular charm. Secrets from these ancient settlers can be rediscovered in Vully's archaeological sites.

The Vully has a very particular climate. It suits just perfectly to the vineyard and all others fruits and vegetables, like rhubarb or onions which are very popular all around and made our identity. The over 150 hectares of vineyards face Lake Murten, which guarantees the region's mild climate. On the other side of Mont Vully, vegetable fields are cultivated. The protected natural reserves along La Broye and the shores of Lake Neuchâtel offer peace and quiet to both walkers and nature lovers.

The hiking trails are very easy and perfect for family's or for people looking for a cool walk. The wine path, botanical path, historic path & shores path are parts of the different itineraries. The truck-farming path is perfect for cycling and to have a look of the agricultural crop, which provide fresh vegetables and fruits for all the little markets around and the swiss supermaket.
