Niemandsland invites you to its twelfth and final concert at its old location. Three soloists will perform, each paying homage to detailed sound in their own unique way.

Christian Kobi, saxophone
A fascinating micro-macro world of sound immerses the listener in a variety of nuances.

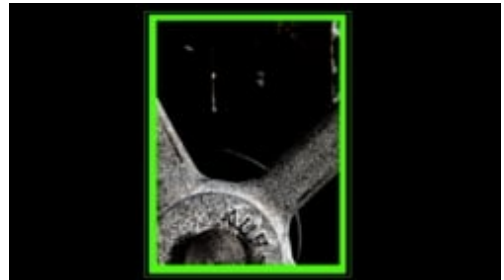

Sarah Buchner, voice
A soundscape of “in-and-out breathing circles,” the acoustic superimposition of sounds, and the contrast between the resonance of the room and the close-up miked voice.

Gaudenz Badrutt, electronics
A sketchy geology of noisy sounds, made up of crystal-clear sound fragments of various sizes and durations.
