FAMILY, DOMDIDIER

PARCOURGE

La Broye is full of pumpkins and squashs. The scouts of Domdidier have hidden some in the forest of Grand Belmont. The aim of the course is to walk through the trees and count them. The one who guesses the right number wins a prize. Once night falls, the less cowardly walk the paths of the forest with a burning torch. The cut squashes are then illuminated by candles. For the less courageous, it is also possible to do the activity during the day.
